MANAGEMENT TECHNIQUES SEMINARS SCHEDULED FOR DEAF EXECUTIVES

Recognizing that leadership training opportunities, which are widely available for hearing executives and professionals, do not exist for deaf persons in similar management positions, the PRWAD has contracted with our Public Service Programs to conduct two Seminars on Management Techniques for deaf leaders this spring.

The first seminar will be held April 6-8 at the Skyland Lodge, Skyline Drive, Virginia. Two outstanding management trainers, Dr. Francis M. Trusty, professor and chairman of the Department of Educational Administration, College of Education, University of Tennessee, and Robert Mehan from our Counseling and Placement Center, will conduct the first seminar for 18 deaf leaders from the Middle Atlantic area.

The seminar sessions will be spent in discussing and analyzing problems facing deaf executives today; in training in human dynamics; in probing problem areas peculiar to deaf executives; in learning techniques of personnel management; and in reviewing personal and professional development programs.

The second of these two conferences will be held in Columbia, Missouri, in June.

WE HAVE BEEN VISITED BY....

With spring well on its way, an increasing number of people are beginning to request visits to the College.

During the past two weeks we have had a group of teachers-in-training from Smith College, speech and hearing club from California State College in Pennsylvania, Dr. Clarke and Mr. McCuaig from the Ministry of Education, Ontario, Canada, as well as several prospective students.

Some groups scheduled for the near future are wives of participants in a World Bank training program, 100 high school students from Jefferson High School, Alexandria, and a psychology of deafness class from the University of Pittsburgh.

WE DEPEND ON YOU

You may be in the grips of spring fever but please do not let us down. ON THE GREEN needs you and your news. Just give a ring on 741 or TTY 480. Better yet stop by our new home in Chapel Hall.
